A go-to urban green space can serve as a peaceful retreat from New York City's chaotic and busy streets. Let's look at some of the top residential buildings in New York City situated within easy access to excellent public and private parks.

96+Broadway, Upper West Side

96+Broadway is a gorgeous new development in the Upper West Side from JVP Management and designed by Thomas Juul Hansen. This stunning 23-story building houses 131 units with one to five bedrooms. With a limestone and glass facade, it has a timeless, iconic design and offers amazing views of the Hudson River, the New York skyline, and Riverside Park. Just steps away from the building, Riverside Park provides more than 330 acres of parkland right by the water, running the length of much of Manhattan's West Side. Among many of Riverside's amenities are waterfront paths, sports courts, skate parks, and a public marina.
