

RESIDENT

A LUXURY LIFESTYLE MAGAZINE

Where Luxury Meets Wanderlust: NYC Residences That Channel Summer 2025's Hottest Travel Destinations

From Japan's Serene Gardens to Greece's Sun-Drenched Rooftops, These New York City Developments Bring Global Inspiration Home

One Williamsburg Wharf Pool with a View Photo Credit: Naftali Group

Matthew Kennedy

Published on: Jun 13, 2025, 3:30 pm · 3 min read

For those who crave international design, cultural richness, and resort-caliber amenities—but aren't boarding a plane this summer—New York City's newest luxury residences may just deliver that same sense of escape. Echoing the aesthetics and ambiance of some of 2025's most sought-after global destinations, these residential offerings prove that travel-inspired living can exist right at home.

Here are four of the city's most transportive new developments, each drawing on a different part of the globe to reimagine what it means to live luxuriously in NYC:

3. 96+Broadway — For Those Channeling Thailand

96+Broadway Wellness Pools Photo Credit: Evan Joseph

At 96+Broadway, wellness becomes its own destination. The 75-foot saltwater pool, framed in travertine flooring and geometric Hemlock wood paneling, evokes the clean lines and calming ambiance of Thailand’s high-end spas and wellness retreats. The aesthetic is subtle but striking—more White Lotus Season Three than typical Upper West Side, and that’s precisely the point.

As global wanderlust continues to influence how—and where—people want to live, these New York developments offer a compelling alternative to hopping on a flight. They invite residents to engage with international aesthetics, slow-living sensibilities, and hospitality-level amenities—all within the energy of the city.

<https://resident.com/real-estate/2025/06/13/where-luxury-meets-wanderlust-nyc-residences-that-channel-summer-2025s-hottest-travel-destinations>